OBJECT TO GRAND-FATHER CLAUSE

REPUBLICAN AND SOCIALIST NEGROES FILE PROTEST AGAINST AMENDMENT.

A LOT OF PRETENSE

Claim Petitions Not Signed by Sufficient Number of Petitioners Required by Law.

Guthrie, Okla., June 1.—Three protests were filed tonight with Secretary of State Bill Cross against the petitions recently filed by the Democratic State Executive Committee to initiate a "grandfather clause" amendment to the state constitution to disfranchise the negro voters of Oklahoma. Jas. A. Harris, as chairman filed a protest for the Republican State Committee, Patrick S. Nagle, as attorney for the Socialist party, filed the second protest, and the third was filed by W. H. Chappell, of Guthrie, as attorney for three aged negro voters, ex-slaves, who can neither read nor write, and would therefore be disfranchised by proposed amendment. The negro protestants are William Low, J. N. Neal and Sampson Smith, each over 70 years old.

Reasons For Protest.

The protests alleges that the petitions filed by the Democratic State Executive Committee, are not signed by a sufficient number of petitioners.

that large numbers of the signers are not qualified and legal voters in Oklahoma; that the petition is not sufficient in form and does not conform to the constitutional requirements; that the purpose of the proposed amendment is to disfranchise persons of African descent who are at this time qualified electors; that the proposed amendment is in conflict with the enabling act, which granted statehood to Oklahoma, in conflict with the state constitution which adopted the enabling act, and the United States constitution, and in conflict with the fifteenth amendment to the Federal constitution, all of which documents provide that no law shall ever be enacted which will restrict or abridge the right of suffrage on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, and that there are more than ten thousand persons of African descent in Oklahoma and their descendants who are now qualified electors, who would be disfranchised by this amendment.

Hearing Asked For.

All the protestants ask that a day be set for a hearing on the objections outlined.

AGAINST AMENDMENT.

Attorney General West Declares he Will Vote No on Article IX.

Guthrie, Okla., June 1.—Charles J. West, attorney general, issued a long statement tonight against the adoption of the Article IX amendment to the state constitution at the polls on June 11, and closed it by saying, "I will vote against the amendment."

NORMALITES DEBATE FOR NORRELL MEDAL

Ada's Young Orators Will Discuss Section 9 of Article 9 of Oklahoma's Constitution. A Splendid Program

Tomorrow evening at 8:30 there will be a debate at the High School Auditorium after which the Norrell Medal will be awarded to the best individual debater. The subject for debate is, Resolved, That Section 9 of Article 9 of the Oklahoma constitution should be repealed. Busby and Hall are on the affirmative and Ethridge and Ebey on the negative. Rev. J. D. White, Hon. Otis B. Weaver and W. T. Cox have been chosen as the judges.

There will be a short musical program in addition to the debate. No admission will be charged and everyone is welcome.

Cowboy Chauffeur Captures Big Bear
Cody, Wyo., May 30.—When a big brown bear paused to look at an automobile near the ranch of G. C. Rudeson at the foot of Big Horn mountain today, Rudolph Rovigne, a cowboy chauffeur, holding the steering wheel with one hand, lassoed bruin as the car swept past. The captive was dragged to the Rudeson ranch and is on exhibition there with several bare spots on his coat.

BLUEFIELD ON VERGE OF SURRENDER

INSURGENTS STRONGHOLD AND CAPITAL CLOSELY BESEIGED

New Orleans, June 1.—With attacks directed upon it from three different directions by the troops of the Madriz Government, Bluefields, the provisional stronghold and capital of the insurgents, finds itself today largely in a state of siege. Within the last few days Gen. Estrada, commanding the insurgents, has repulsed the enemy behind Bluefields and at Rama, but has lost the bluff and the custom house through what he believes to have been a piece of treachery.

Several Americans Killed

This has been the bloodiest week of the war and the total of the casualty lists on both sides will run into the hundreds, including several Americans, who had cast their lot with the insurgents.

In the fight at Rama William Ross, said to be from Milwaukee and to have served either in the United States Army or Navy, was killed. Several other Americans buried his body on the hills near Rama.

Another American named Mason was reported killed. He was last seen in a trench between the Madriz army and the insurgents' fortifications.

A HUNDRED SCOTCH LASSIES TO WED

Brings to Mind the Memorable Year of 1619 at Jamestown

New York, June 1.—Nearly one hundred young Scotch women, betrothed to men who have been in America from six months to several years, arrived in the first and second cabin and steerage of the steamship Caledonia, from Glasgow. Some of the first cabin voyagers were met at the pier by men who took them away to marry them. Steerage passengers, who were taken to Ellis Island, will be released and married soon.

WOMEN SUFFRAGISTS WIN VICTORY

OKLAHOMA SUPREME COURT UP HOLDS THE RULING OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

Guthrie, Okla., June 1.—The woman suffragists of Oklahoma won a signal victory in the supreme court today, when Associate Justice Williams affirmed the decision of Secretary of State Bill Cross in overruling the objections made by State Secretary Reuben M. Roddie of Ada to the petitions secured by the suffragists asking for an election to give women the elective franchise in this state. The proposition will now be referred by Secretary Cross to Gov. Faskell for a place on the ballot in November.

The court named June 7 the day when State Senator Campbell Russell's initiated bill to locate the permanent state capital on the "New Jerusalem" plan, and appropriating $1,000,000 for that purpose will be argued.

Other decisions today were as follows:

By Chief Justice Dun: State vs. Allison, Cleveland county, affirmed.

By Justice Williams: Edwards vs. T. H. Rassh, Custer county, affirmed; City of McAlester vs. McMurray, Pittsburg County, reversed and remanded.

burg County, reversed and remanded. By Justice Kane: Reversing action of the Woodward County jury that removed County Judge T. L. O'Bryan from office; Walker vs. Bowman, Oklahoma county, affirmed.

REV. C. E. FOWLER TO PREACH BACCALAUTE SERMON

Rev. O. E. Fowler, pastor of the North Ada Baptist church, has the honor of delivering the Baccalaute sermon to the graduates of the Wapanucka High School next Sunday at 11 o'clock.

On the same day, assisted by Rev. W. J. Shipman, he will begin a ten day's protracted meeting at that place. He has promised to report the progress of the revival from time to time.

Granddaughter of Sam Houston Marries Lawton Capitalist

Oklahoma City, Ok., June 1.—Jas. W. Martin, a Lawton capitalist, and Miss Mary E. Houston, a granddaughter of Gen. Sam Houston, hero of the Texas Battle of San Jacinto and afterward Governor of the Republic of Texas and of the State, and cousin of the late Temple Houston of Woodward, were married today. The ceremony was performed by a Catholic priest. Mr. and Mrs. Martin left immediately for Kansas City.

OKLAHOMA PERFECTED LAW, BUT DID NOT ORIGINATE IT.

Shake a red rag at a range bull or
the bank guaranty law at a Republican politician and you explode the falacy of the ancient proverb, "Hell bath no fury like a woman scorned."
The acrobatic girations of Joe Mc-Neal demonstrate fully and finally that the devil's proverb list must undergo a revision. In the long ago, one time before the Democrats took Oklahoma, a female scorned might have raised some hul-a-baloo in Hades, but she must now perform before empty benches while "forty percent Joe" is on the boards. Arguing ad finem that it is outrageous for a banker to return borrowed money, especially when the money is borrowed from farmers, merchants, and mechanics. "Freak legislation." Socialistic doctrine. "Bow Wow."

But why not open the records and let the story of the Bank Guaranty law be read as it appears on the legislative pages of the past. The idea had passed into legislative enactments long before Oklahoma's name appeared in the geography of the union, and many decades before American Socialism had pipped its shell.

1. New York, which is sometimes Democratic, oftener Republican, and always capitalistic, passed a bank guaranty law in 1831.

2. Vermont, always Republican, and never having enough Democrats for the Republican spell-binders to use for "horrible examples," passed a bank guaranty law in 1834.

3. Republican Michigan passed a bank guaranty law years before the Civil war.

"Let the people know," that the Bank Guaranty law has been tried in other states and that it has prevented panics in this.

Some Whys and Wherefores.

1. Why do corporations so persistently denounce the state corporation commission? Because they have never with all their brains and their cunning been able to control that commission.

Because the commission has taken them by the throat and told them to obey the laws of the state.

Because the commission has insisted on their meeting the requirements of their charters. Because the commission has warned them that honesty is the best policy.

2. Why does the Republican press of Oklahoma sympathize with the corporations in their war on the Corporation Commission?

Because from time immemorial it has been perfectly natural for a parent to sympathize with its child.

That the Oklahoma Republican press should attack the State Corporation Commission is immaterial. It is their policy to attack everything that bears the Democratic trademark.

But the opinion of the Commission held by the Republican press of other states is more material, because of their unprejudiced attitude and because of their absolute disinterestedness.

The leading Republican daily of Topeka, Kansas, said recently of the Oklahoma Corporation Commission and
its laws:

Give Kansas as good corporation
laws as are contained in the constitution of Oklahoma, and give us an efficient corporation commission as the state of Oklahoma, and then will Kansas reap the rewards due its people.

Humorous Happening to English Disciple of the Immortal
Isaac Walton.

An incident of a somewhat amusing
nature was witnessed a few days ago
near the Gower bridge, Llanrwst, says the London Field. It appears that a visitor armed with rod and line was plying the gentle art and enticing the wily trout by insinuating his flies on the placid surface of the deep pool which forms that portion of the Conway river.

Above him on a high bank stood a cow. Suddenly a big trout rose like a flash and secured one of the flies, with the result that the reel immediately began to whirl.

The angler, with galvanic suddenness, jumped back and struck. His unexpected maneuver, however, startled the cow, with the result that she slipped and with a somersault and a heartrending "Moo!" fell with a mighty splash into the pool beneath.

The rod was struck from the angler's hand and after a few spasmodic movements floated gently down stream, while the trout, adapting himself to such favorable opportunity, dis-gorged the indigestible mockery on
the hook and dashed out of the zone
of danger and turmoil. The angler, who had undergone the pleasures of a generous shower bath, having collected his scattered thoughts and convinced himself that he was not implicated in the throes of a violent earthquake, hurled a torrent of theological terms on the innocent cow, which was making futile efforts to regain terra firma.

It soon became evident, however,
that the animal was drowning, so the angler, with the generosity of his kind, called for assistance, and ultimately the half-drowned cow was rescued by means of ropes. It is anticipated that the angler when he next visits his club in England will regale the company with reminiscences
of his fishing exploit in the Conway when he hooked a trout and landed a cow.

PROTECT NEW ZEALAND BIRDS

Stringent Laws Found Necessary If Any Are to Be Saved—Killed
by Imported Vermin.

Nearly every native bird in New Zealand will be absolutely protected by law this year. The animals protection act provides that 1910 and every third year after that may at the discretion of the governor in council be declared a closed season for native game. The absence of bird life in New Zealand is already most noticeable. T. Mackenzie, a member of the government, as the result of a recent journey through the country,
writes:

"Between Nelson and Hokitika hardly any bird life at all is to be met with; the imported vermin have done their work of bird destruction only too well. In the region from Ross to the south, however, the tui and the pigeon are to be seen making bright the landscape with their presence.

"At the Forks I met a gentleman who took a great interest in bird life
on the coast, and he told me that the weka, kiwi and kawakawa had disappeared, and he believed that the stoats and weasels killed every bird in the country. He had himself just lost a half grown black swan which he had reared. He had found it lying on its back with a gash in its throat.

"The stoats and weasels were often seen in the neighborhood of the lakes where the ducks made their nests, and it was suspected that the vermin paid due attention to their eggs."

Literary Ambition.

"Oh, I simply can't go downtown
this morning. I must stay at home and write to the editor of the Whirl."

"Why on earth should you wish to write to the editor of the Whirl? Do you know him?"

"No, I mean a letter for publication,
you know—among the 'Communications
From Our Readers.' Don't you ever read them? They're awfully interesting."

"Yes, I read them sometimes. But what do you wish to write about? I didn't know you were specially interested in any public question."

"I'm not, but I have just learned a French phrase, and I thought it would be so nice to have my name signed to an article in which it was used—printed in italics."

THE POWER OF STEAM.

Many May See But It Takes Genius to Realize.

When James Watt saw the steam causing the kettle lid to jump up and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight."

There was.
Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.

Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Dandruff, Fall-has unearthed a tiny germ which eats

Some Recent Experiments Have Proven it a Practical and Wonderful Invention.

The Japanese have been the first nation to officially recognize the wireless telephone. The Occidentals are setting the pace for the world. Uncle Sam is not far behind, for congress has appropriated $30,000
this year for wireless telephones for the army and Rear Admiral Cowles, chief of the bureau of equipment of the United States navy, has submitted
to congress a plan for equipping the vessels with wireless phones.

The inventor, Mr. Collins, is an alumnus of the old University of Chicago, and has been experimenting with wireless telephony since 1899. He patented his invention just after the dawn of the twentieth century and continued to develop and improve it until in July, 1908, he made his longest distance test from his laboratory in Newark, N. J., to Philadelphia, Pa., where another instrument was located in the Land Title building.

Since that time the growth of the wireless telephone idea has been phenomenal. Mr. Collins has perfected a tuning device that insures secrecy of conversation. He has improved the entire system until today his wireless telephone is ready for general commercial use.

The most notable tests of the Collins wireless telephone were made by the inventor in July, 1908, as above stated. The Scientific American states:

"The longest distance wireless telephone tests yet made on this side of the Atlantic were between Newark
N. J., and Philadelphia, Pa., a distance of 81 miles, as wireless waves travel.

"The system by which this has been accomplished is due to A. Frederick Collins, a pioneer in the wireless telephone field. The first of his series of tests took place between his laboratory in Newark, where he has a high-power sending station, and the Singer building in New York city, about twelve miles away, when spoken words were clearly and loudly transmitted across the intervening space. The following day the distance was increased to 35 miles, when the receiving station was located at Mr. Collins' country home at Congers, N. Y., and then, amplifying the power of the sending station and bringing the instruments into sharp resonance, the Newark-Philadelphia tests were made
the following Tuesday at midnight, from the top of the Land Title building."

Women War on Disease.

If exophthalmic goitre, the origin
of which has up to the present baffled
the medical world, is ever proved to be a microbic disease, a great portion of the credit for the discovery, says the London Mail, will be due to the women workers in the laboratories of the Royal hospital in Gray's Inn road.

In recent years the surgeons of the Royal Free hospital have made a special study of goitre cases from the operative standpoint, and from the material thus gained the laboratory staff have been able to go thoroughly into
the numerous theories current as to its cause. As a result microscopic changes in the tissues of goitres have been observed which almost conclusively prove that some as yet undiscovered microbe is the active cause of the disease.

The success of the experiment of having women on the house staff, begun in 1901, is shown in the annual increase in the number of patients treated since that date. At the annual
100,000 out-patients had been treated in the past year.

Permanently Soured.

The lawyer was examining the ventreman as to his qualifications to sit on the jury.

"You know, Mr. Swaddleford," he said, "the meaning of the phrase,
"reasonable doubt," do you not?"

"Yes, sir."

"If the testimony in this case should cause you to entertain a doubt as to the guilt of the defendant do you think you could give him the benefit
of it?"

"No, sir; I couldn't."

"Why not?"

"Because, sir," snapped the ventreman, "I've been givin' old Doc Cook the benefit of all the doubts and when I found out he's the worst faker in the business I ain't got no patience

"That is all, Mr. Swaddleford."

"You may stand aside," said the court.

Mr. W. M. Webb explained how fashions were perpetuated by the gradual acquisition of a gentleman's castoff clothes by his servants. A powdered footman of today was wearing the costume of a gentleman of George II.'s time, and the lord mayor's coachman now was dressed exactly like a nobleman of the time of George
III. A page boy, with his three rows of buttons, wore what was known in the early years of last century as the
"Dutch skeleton dress," a very fash-
classes.—London Standard.

Sad but True.

"A few of us manage to carve our names on the tablet of fame," remarked old uncle Hankypank.
"Well?" said the player-up.
"But most of us never carve them on anything more important than a mud turtle."

INTERESTING CASE IN POLICE COURT

There has been a case before both the Police and Justice court that has been ground for a good deal of discussion for the past week. On the 25 of May policeman Culver and Brady arrested J. B. Rogers, charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

Rogers gave bond for his appearance in Police court next morning, but before that court opened he went before Justice of the Peace, Brown, and informed him that he, Rogers, wanted to plead guilty to carrying a pistol. The Judge asked if he had been arrested, whereupon Rogers replied in the affirmative.

Furthermore it appears that Rogers asked Jim Adair to make a complaint against him to Judge Brown. Adair hesitated on the ground that he had not made the arrest and not sign the complaint at that instant. But, as evidence tended to show in yesterday's trial, Judge Brown accepted a fine of $25.00 and cost from the defendant, after which time Adair signed the complaint.

The defendant appeared at the Police court and Chief Culver made a complaint against him in the above mentioned court to which he pleaded guilty. Judge Powers assessed a fine against him of $14.15. The defendant claimed that he did not understand that he was on trial when the plea of guilty was made. The Judge after considerable deliberation allowed the defendant to withdraw the plea and granted him a new trial. The trial was set for June 1. Then comes the defendant and pleads a bar to prosecution by reason of former conviction. The court overruled this and ruled that the defendant could not plead former conviction as a bar and that this court had prior jurisdiction by reasons of its officers having arrested the defendant and had placed him under bond to appear in police court before he had plead in Justice court. Then the case was brought to trial and the defendant was convicted and fined $23.25. The defendant made bond and appealed to District Court.

The case has been interesting because it was merely a contest to determine jurisdiction of the two courts.

CONCRETE STREET PAVEMENT

A concrete street pavement in Richmond, Ind., laid in 1896, is still giving good service and has not required a cent for repairs, according to Mr. Frank R. Charles, city engineer. Extreme care, he says, was taken in laying it. The sub-grade is gravel, the slab a 1:2:5 mixture, 5 in. thick after ramming, and the wearing surface a 1:2 motar 1 1-2 in. thick. The surface is cut into 5 ft. squares, and pitted with a roller. One-inch expansion joints are used at intervals of 30 to 40 ft., and are filled with paving pitch. In later pavements cutting into larger blocks has been tried in order to reduce the number of joints, but the maximum size is limited by necessary allowance of joints for temperature changes. In some pavements laid more recently on streets carrying heavy traffic, the slab has been increased to 6 in. in thickness and the wearing coat to 2 in.—From Cement and Engineering News.

NEGRESS MADE DESPERATE GUN PLAY YESTERDAY

ANOTHER ESCAPE IN COON TOWN. JUST A MAD NEGGER AND A GUN

Yesterday, late in the afternoon, Lillie Murrell, wife of George Murrell, got on a rampage and went gunning for her man George. As the story goes she secured the firearm from a neighboring shack and was under headway back to her own house where she hoped to wreak vengeance on her Lord who was resting quite at ease—perhaps asleep unaware of the approaching danger. A meddlesome coon on the compass platform devining her intention, butted in, so to speak, but one shot from Lillie's gun sufficed to cause him to desist. About this time Sheriff T. J. Smith, who had gotten wind of the expected trouble, appeared upon the scene. The negress seeing the sheriff would anticipate her by cutting her off from the house, took a pop at him, whereupon T. J. dodged behind a convenient box car, so some one has said, and prevailed on the woman in very eloquent terms not to repeat the act. Anyway he convinced her that he could shoot a little himself if necessary. The woman then turned and kept on in quest of her George. Sheriff Smith again headed her off from the house and closed in on the wench, but not in time to keep her from emptying the revolver at the house. She was desperate and Smith was determined; consequently when he caught her he found himself pretty well matched in a contest for physical strength. The negress finally was forced to a surrender, after which she was turned over to the city authorities and was placed in the city jail.

But, when it came time for her to be placed in the cell, she put up a No. 1 good fight, with "teeth and toenail," and after she was confined, a big butcher knife was found on her person.

STRIKES OIL TANKS IN NOWATA FIELD

LIGHTNING CAUSED HEAVY DAMAGE IN SETTING FIRE TO TANKS.

Nowata, Okla., June 1.—At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon lightning caused one of the biggest fires in this oil district ever known. All around in the Childers field are burning tanks, and the amount of damage done can not be estimated until tomorrow. The whole city is excited over the fires and many parties went out to the field as soon as the storm abated, to view the damage and watch the inspiring sight of so many big tanks fiercely burning.

On the Connor lease, adjacent to town, there are four 1,600 barrel tank in flames. On the lease adjoining that are three 250 barrel tanks burning and beyond that can be seen the smoke of other burning tanks. Little definite information can be had in the city as those interested have gone to the field and none of them have yet returned.

The storm which was the cause of the disaster came from the northwest in the afternoon and was one of the fiercest seen here in some time. There was a heavy fall of rain, accompanied by numerous and vivid flashes of lightning. The rain and storm continued for some time and it was nearly dark before the uneasy oil men were able to get teams and investigate the amount of the loss. As far as is known at present there has been no loss of life.

Cause of Eczema Explained.

After years of debate medical authorities are now agreed that Eczema and other skin diseases are not seated in the blood, but are caused by myriads of microscopic animals gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.

Hence, scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in liquid form in order to penetrate properly. And we can say with confidence that we have the true remedy for Eczema in our store.

The instant you wash with this soothing liquid you will find the itch relieved. We positively assure you of this. Will you try a bottle (at only 25c) on our recommendation? Ask for D. D. D. Prescription. Ramsey Drug Company, West Main Street

Deaf and Dumb!

By Harriet Lumms Smith

(Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

The two young men seated at the round table in the little open-air restaurant had kept up a desultory flow of talk, such as was compatible with doing justice to the delicious soft-shelled crabs for which the Sea Gull is noted. But it was a soundless conversation, inarticulate, for the fingers talked rather than the lips. George Laveton was a deaf mute and his cousin, Allan Merrifield, though less proficient in the sign language, had mastered enough of its intricacies to enable him to sustain a part in the conversation.

It was a girl's voice, coming from the table at the right.

"Now, which of us does she mean?" wondered Allan. His uncertainty was a credit to his modesty, for George's lean, brown face, in spite of an expression of alert intelligence, lacked every element of beauty. Fortunately the speaker settled the question by adding, "What dark, beautiful eyes he has! I never care for blue eyes in a man."

Allan heaved a sigh of relief. George's eyes were gray. He improved the first opportunity to glance at the other table. The girl in blue was beautiful. Her oval face was tinted like a seashell and the big violet eyes with their long lashes were bewitching in their frank pity.

George nudged his friend and his nimble fingers spelled out warning. "Don't stare so. It's rude."

"The worst of it is," remarked the girl who had spoken first, "that such an affliction shuts them out of everything. Of course they can't marry. No woman in her senses would consider such a thing."

"I don't know why," cried the girl in blue, indignantly.

"You don't?" The exclamation of her companion indicated mingled disapproval and surprise.

"Well, for one reason, he couldn't make love to you."

"He wouldn't need to," declared the girl in blue, a trifle sentimentally. "If only he looked—" she broke off with a laugh and her companion said, reprovingly:

"Well, Winifred, I don't wonder you blush."

Allan longed to see how she looked when she was blushing, but he did not dare to raise his eyes. And her name was Winifred. Somehow he liked the sound of it. He repeated it musingly to himself.

The talk at the table on the right turned into other channels, but though Allan listened eagerly for a clue to the identity of the speakers, none reached his ears. "In a few minutes we'll leave or they'll leave," he reflected, "and I'll never see her again." It seemed to him that it was a piece of malice on the part of fate to have placed the girl in such tantalizing proximity, at the same time setting between them the barred wire fence of social convention. Why couldn't he have met her? He wished for a hurricane or an earthquake, something that would afford him an excuse for hurrying to her side and proffering his aid. But nothing happened except that George finished his crabs and asked on his fingers the leading question:

"Why have you lost your appetite?" Allan took a final glance at the girl as he rose to go. She was even prettier than he had imagined—and sweeter. What a pensive little mouth was hers, drooping at the corners! And what a brave, tender-hearted little girl she had proved herself in her impetuous challenge to her friend. It seemed hard that he was turning away from her without any assurance that he would ever see her again. As he stepped aboard the street car he had so burdensome a sense of heaviness at heart that the ludicrous side of the situation forced itself on his attention and he laughed aloud.

In the nature of the case, an energetic young lawyer who is also a social favorite has little time to give to sentimental regrets. But somehow the memory of the girl whose name was Winifred came back to Allan often in his hours of relaxation, or when he heard sweet music. Sometimes he dreamed of seeing her and the joy of recognition invariably awoke him. And so things went until one crisp fall morning, when Fate again took a hand in the game.

Allan came out of his office in a rush. He had some important matters to attend to before meeting a client. He had not yet reached the point in his profession when he could safely keep clients waiting. Accordingly he started to cross the street, despite the fact that a touring car was bearing down upon him, heralding its advance by the aggressive toots by which the modern motorist asserts his pre-eminence claim to the public highway. Allan believed that he had time enough to get across before the car should strike him and that, anyway, it was the chauffeur's business to look out.

At the critical moment his calculations were upset by a hand that clutched him arm. He stopped and pulled violently back, from under the very wheels of the swerving car.

Allan got back to the sidewalk without knowing just what had happened except that the hand that had first clutched him still held fast to his arm. Then, looking down, he saw that it was a little hand in a blue glove.

The hand released its hold on him, touched his shoulder, as if to attract his attention, and pointed in the direction of the now vanishing car. Allan understood that an effort had been made to save him from the consequences of his own recklessness and he tried to seem grateful.

The brim of the big hat was tilted with startling suddenness, disclosing a face, winsome in spite of its pallor. "You—you can speak?" gasped the girl—the girl whose name was Winifred.

The situation was trying. Suddenly it flashed upon him that his possession of the normal faculties was an offense to her. He tried to think of an answer to make to her and she backed away from him, the waves of color flooding her face.

"And you can hear, too," she accused him. "You can't deny it."

"I—I'm afraid I can't," said Allan, with real emotion.

"And you're not deaf and dumb at all? I was trying to save your life. I thought that you couldn't hear the horn and that you would be killed."

She had her hands up over her face. He could see only the tips of her ears. His admiring tribute had not comforted her. She was thinking of something else.

He came close to her. The street was full of people. Some passers-by stared at the pair, the girl with her face covered, as if she were crying, and the tall young man bending over her and plainly trying to comfort her. But, for all Allan knew, they two were alone in some enchanted garden.

"I'd like to tell you what I do think of you," he said, unsteadily. "Some time when we're better acquainted I shall do it. But without waiting I can tell what I think about myself, and it's that I'm the luckiest fellow on earth to find you again. Now I'm going to walk along with you and find out what your name is—besides Winifred."

The client came promptly at eleven. And he waited as long as if Allan had been an acknowledged ornament to the bar, rather than a beginner with a name to make.

Woman as a Social Success. There is no quality more to be desired to make a woman a social success than that of tact. Its possessor knows the right thing to do and the right time for doing it and thus gains a reputation for cleverness and for many virtues which a tactless person would never win from her circle of acquaintances, no matter how excellent her qualities of both heart and head.

The tactful woman is not only a patient listener, but she is a thoroughly good one. She shows no weariness even when she has heard the same story more than once from the same person and she smiles in the right place and appears to enjoy hearing jokes as much as her companion enjoys telling them, says Woman's Life. A tactful woman generally gets her own way with her husband and with other people and yet in such a manner that people always suppose that they are following their own and not her inclinations. The fact is that she knows when a man is approachable and likely to be amenable to her wishes and when it is best to leave him alone. Tact is a weapon guided with a multitude of precautions and feminine wiles by the wise woman and it is only the wise who possess it.

Check Impulsiveness. There is a sort of impulsiveness which often gets people into serious trouble. We are fretted and vexed at the acts of somebody else and we do not wait to think, but say out our irritation and wound deeply some sensitive spirit. We are angry and we let passion rule us instead of calm reflection. The impulsive person who cannot control his temper is like one who carries fire near gunpowder.

OBJECT TO GRAND-FATHER CLAUSE

REPUBLICAN AND SOCIALIST NEGROES FILE PROTEST AGAINST AMENDMENT.

Guthrie, Okla., June 1.—Three protests were filed tonight with Secretary of State Bill Cross against the petitions recently filed by the Democratic State Executive Committee to initiate a "grandfather clause" amendment to the state constitution to disfranchise the negro voters of Oklahoma. Jas. A. Harris, as chairman filed a protest for the Republican State Committee. Patrick S. Nagle, as attorney for the Socialist party, filed the second protest, and the third was filed by W. H. Chappell, of Guthrie, as attorney for three aged negro voters, ex-slaves, who can neither read nor write, and would therefore be disfranchised by proposed amendment. The negro protesters are William Low, J. N. Neal and Sampson Smith, each over 70 years old.

The protests alleges that the petitions filed by the Democratic State Executive Committee, are not signed by a sufficient number of petitioners:

that large numbers of the signers are not qualified and legal voters in Oklahoma; that the petition is not sufficient in form and does not conform to the constitutional requirements; that the purpose of the proposed amendment is to disfranchise persons of African descent who are at this time qualified electors; that the proposed amendment is in conflict with the enabling act, which granted statehood to Oklahoma, in conflict with the state constitution which adopted the enabling act, and the United States constitution, and in conflict with the fifteenth amendment to the Federal constitution, all of which documents provide that no law shall ever be enacted which will restrict or abridge the right of suffrage on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, and that there are more than ten thousand persons of African descent in Oklahoma and their descendants who are now qualified electors, who would be disfranchised by this amendment.

Hearing Asked For.

All the protesters ask that a day be set for a hearing on the objections outlined.

AGAINST AMENDMENT.

Attorney General West Declares he Will Vote No on Article IX.

Guthrie, Okla., June 1.—Charles J. West, attorney general, issued a long statement tonight against the adoption of the Article IX amendment to the state constitution at the polls on June 11, and closed it by saying: "I will vote against the amendment."

NORMALITES DEBATE FOR NORRELL MEDAL

Ada's Young Orators Will Discuss Section 9 of Article 9 of Oklahoma's Constitution. A Splendid Program

Tomorrow evening at 8:30 there will be a debate at the High School Auditorium after which the Norrell Medal will be awarded to the best individual debater. The subject for debate is, Resolved, That Section 9 of Article 9 of the Oklahoma constitution should be repealed. Busby and Hall are on the affirmative and Ethridge and Ebey on the negative. Rev. J. D. White, Hon. Otis B. Weaver and W. T. Cox have been chosen as the judges.

There will be a short musical program in addition to the debate. No admission will be charged and everyone is welcome.

Cowboy Chauffeur Captures Big Bear Cody, Wyo., May 30.—When a big brown bear paused to look at an automobile near the ranch of G. C. Rudeson at the foot of Big Horn mountain today, Rudolph Rovigne, a cowboy chauffeur, holding the steering wheel with one hand, lassoed him as the car swept past. The captive was dragged to the Rudeson ranch and is on exhibition there with several bare spots on his coat.

New Orleans, June 1.—With attacks directed upon it from three different directions by the troops of the Madriz Government, Bluefields, the provisional stronghold and capital of the insurgents, finds itself today largely in a state of siege. Within the last few days Gen. Estrada, commanding the insurgents, has repulsed the enemy behind Bluefields and at Rama, but has lost the bluff and the custom house through what he believes to have been a piece of treachery.

Several Americans Killed

This has been the bloodiest week of the war and the total of the casualty lists on both sides will run into the hundreds, including several Americans, who had cast their lot with the insurgents.

In the fight at Rama William Ross, said to be from Milwaukee and to have served either in the United States Army or Navy, was killed. Several other Americans buried his body on the hills near Rama.

Another American named Mason was reported killed. He was last seen in a trench between the Madriz army and the insurgents' fortifications.

New York, June 1.—Nearly one hundred young Scotch women, betrothed to men who have been in America from six months to several years, arrived in the first and second cabin and steerage of the steamship Caledonia, from Glasgow. Some of the first cabin voyagers were met at the pier by men who took them away to marry them. Steerage passengers, who were taken to Ellis Island, will be released and married soon.

Guthrie, Okla., June 1.—The woman suffragists of Oklahoma won a signal victory in the supreme court today, when Associate Justice Williams affirmed the decision of Secretary of State Bill Cross in overruling the objections made by State Secretary Reuben M. Roddie of Ada to the petitions secured by the suffragists asking for an election to give women the elective franchise in this state. The proposition will now be referred by Secretary Cross to Gov. Faskell for a place on the ballot in November.

The court named June 7 the day when State Senator Campbell Russell's initiated bill to locate the permanent state capital on the "New Jerusalem" plan, and appropriating $1,000,000 for that purpose will be argued.

Other decisions today were as follows:

By Justice Williams: Edwards vs. T. H. Rassb, Custer county, affirmed; City of McAlester vs. McMurray, Pitts-

REV. C. E. FOWLER TO PREACH BACCALAUTE SERMON

Rev. O. E. Fowler, pastor of the North Ada Baptist church, has the honor of delivering the Baccalaute sermon to the graduates of the Wapauka High School next Sunday at 11 o'clock.

On the same day, assisted by Rev. W. J. Shipman, he will begin a ten day's protracted meeting at that place. He has promised to report the progress of the revival from time to time.

Oklahoma City, Ok., June 1.—Jas. W. Martin, a Lawton capitalist, and Miss Mary E. Houston, a granddaughter of Gen. Sam Houston, hero of the Texas Battle of San Jacinto and afterward Governor of the Republic of Texas and of the State, and cousin of the late Temple Houston of Woodward, were married today. The ceremony was performed by a Catholic priest. Mr. and Mrs. Martin left immediately for Kansas City.

OKLAHOMA PERFECTED LAW, BUT DID NOT

ORIGINATE IT.
Shake a red rag at a range bull or
the bank guaranty law at a Republican politician and you explode the
falacy of the ancient proverb "Hell
bath no fury like a woman scorned."
The acrobatic gyrations of Joe Mc-Neal demonstrate fully and finally
undergo a revision. In the long ago
one time before the Democrats took
have raised some bull-a-balloo in Hades but she must now perform before empty benches while forty percent Joe is on the boards. Arguing and flouting that it is outrageous for a banker to return borrowed money especially when the money is borrowed from farmers merchants and mechanics. Freak legislation. Socialistic doctrine. Bow Wow Woof.

But why not open the records and let the story of the Bank Guaranty
law be read as it appears on the legislative pages of the past. The idea
had passed into legislative enactments
long before Oklahoma's name appeared in the geography of the union and many decades before American Socialism had pipped its shell.

1. New York, which is sometimes Democratic, oftener Republican, and
always capitalistic, passed a bank
guaranty law in 1881.

2. Vermont, always Republican,
and never having enough Democrats
for the Republican spellbinders to
use for "horrible examples," passed
a bank guaranty law in 1884.

3. Republican Michigan passed a bank guaranty law years before the Civil war.

Let the people know that the Bank Guaranty law has been tried in
panics in this.

Some Whys and Wherefores.

1. Why do corporations so persistently denounce the state corporation commission? Because they have never with all their brains and their cunning been able to control that commission.

Because the commission has taken
them by the throat and told them to obey the laws of the state.

Because the commission has insisted on their meeting the requirements
of their charters. Because the commission has warned them that honesty is the best policy.

2. Why does the Republican press of Oklahoma sympathize with the corporations in their war on the Corporation Commission?

Because from time immemorial it
has been perfectly natural for a parent to sympathize with its child.

That the Oklahoma Republican
press should attack the State Corporation Commission is immaterial. It
that bears the Democratic trademark.

But the opinion of the Commission
their unprejudiced attitude and because of their absolute disinterested-
ness.

The leading Republican daily of Topeka Kansas said recently of the Oklahoma Corporation Commission and
its laws.

laws as are contained in the constitu-

Some Recent Experiments Have Proven It a Practical and Wonderful Invention.

nation to officially recognize the wire-
less telephone. The Occidentals
are setting the pace for the
for congress has appropriated $30,000
this year for wireless telephones for the army and Navy. Admiral COWLEY, chief of the bureau of equipment of
vessels with wireless phones.

The inventor, Mr. Collins, is an alumnus of the old University of Chicago, and has been experimenting with
patented his invention just after the
dawn of the twentieth century and
continued to develop and improve it
distance test from his laboratory in
where another instrument was located in the Land Title building.

Since that time the growth of the
wireless telephone idea has been phe-
tuning device that insures accuracy of
entire system until today his wireless telephone is ready for general commercial use.

The most notable tests of the Collins wireless telephone were made by
the inventor in July 1908, as above stated. The Scientific American
states:

The longest distance wireless telephone tests yet made on this side of the Atlantic were between Newark
N. J., and Philadelphia Pa., a distance of 81 miles as wireless waves travel.

The system by which this has been accomplished is due to A. Frederick Collins a pioneer in the wireless telephony field. The first of his series of tests took place between his laboratory in Newark, where he has a high
building in New York city, about twelve miles away, when spoken words
were clearly and loudly transmitted
across the intervening space. The following day the distance was increased to 35 miles, when the receiving station was located at Mr. Collins'
country home at Congers, N. Y., and
sending station and bringing the instruments into sharp resonance, the Newark Philadelphia tests were made
the following Tuesday at midnight,
from the top of the Land Title building.

Women War on Disease.
If exophthalmic goitre, the origin
of which has up to the present baffled
be a microbic disease a great portion of the credit for the discovery,
says the London Mail, will be due to
the women workers in the laboratories
road.

In recent years the surgeons of the Royal Free hospital have made a special study of goitre cases from the operative standpoint, and from the material thus gained the laboratory staff have been able to go thoroughly into
the numerous theories current as to
been observed which almost conclusively prove that some as yet undis-
covered microbe is the active cause of the disease.

The success of the experiment of
gun in 1901, is shown in the annual increase in the number of patients treated since that date. At the annual
in the past year.

Permanently Soured
The lawyer was examining the ven-
treman as to his qualifications to sit
on the jury.

"You know Mr. Swaddleford," he said "the meaning of the phrase,
"reasonable doubt," do you not?"
"Yes, sir."

the guilt of the defendant do you
of it?"

"Why not?"

"Because, sir," snapped the ven-
treman "I've been givin' old Doc Cook
the benefit of all the doubts and when
the business I ain't got no patience

"That is all Mr. Swaddleford."
"You may stand aside," said the
court.

Mr. W. M. Webb explained how
fashions were perpetuated by the
gradual acquisition of a gentleman's

There has been a case before both the Police and Justice court that has been ground for a good deal of discussion for the past week. On the 25 of May policeman Culver and Brady arrested J. B. Rogers, charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

Rogers gave bond for his appearance in Police court next morning, but before that court opened he went before Justice of the Peace, Brown, and informed him that he, Rogers, wanted to plead guilty to carrying a pistol. The Judge asked, if he had been arrested, whereupon Rogers replied in the affirmative.

Furthermore it appears that Rogers asked Jim Adair to make a complaint against him to Judge Brown. Adair hesitated on the ground that he had not made the arrest and not sign the complaint at that instant. But, as evidence tended to show in yesterday's trial, Judge Brown accepted a fine of $25.00 and cost from the defendant, after which time Adair signed the complaint.

The defendant appeared at the Police court and Chief Culver made a complaint against him in the above mentioned court to which he pleaded guilty. Judge Powers assessed a fine against him of $14.15. The defendant claimed that he did not understand that he was on trial when the plea of guilty was made. The Judge after considerable deliberation allowed the defendant to withdraw the plea and granted him a new trial. The trial was set for June 4. Then comes the defendant and pleads a bar to prosecution by reason of former conviction. The court overruled this and ruled that the defendant could not plead former conviction as a bar and that this court had prior jurisdiction by reasons of its officers having arrested the defendant and had placed him under bond to appear in police court before he had plead in Justice court. Then the case was brought to trial and the defendant was convicted and fined $23.25. The defendant made bond and appealed to District Court. The case has been interesting because it was merely a contest to determine jurisdiction of the two courts.

CONCRETE STREET PAVEMENT

A concrete street pavement in Richmond, Ind., laid in 1896, is still giving good service and has not required a cent for repairs, according to Mr. Frank R. Charles, city engineer. Extreme care, he says, was taken in laying it. The sub-grade is gravel, the slab a 1:2:5 mixture, 5 in. thick after ramming, and the wearing surface a 1:2 motor 1 1-2 in. thick. The surface is cut into 5 ft. squares, and pitted with a roller. One-inch expansion joints are used at intervals of 30 to 40 ft., and are filled with paving pitch. In later pavements cutting into larger blocks has been tried in order to reduce the number of joints, but the maximum size is limited by necessary allowance of joints for temperature changes. In some pavements laid more recently on streets carrying heavy traffic, the slab has been increased to 6 in. in thickness and the wearing coat to 2 in.—From Cement and Engineering News.

Yesterday, late in the afternoon, Little Murrell, wife of George Murrell, got on a rampage and went gunning for her man George. As the story goes she secured the firearm from a neighboring shack and was under headway back to her own house where she hoped to wreak vengeance on her Lord who was resting quite at ease—perhaps asleep unaware of the approaching danger. A meddlesome coon on the compress platform deviling her intention, butted in, so to speak, but one shot from Little's gun sufficed to cause him to desert. About this time Sheriff T. J. Smith, who had gotten wind of the expected trouble, appeared upon the scene. The negress seeing the sheriff would anticipate her by cutting her off from the house, took a pop at him, whereupon T. J. dodged behind a convenient box car, so some one has said, and prevailed on the woman in very eloquent terms not to repeat the act. Anyway he convinced her that he could shoot a little himself if necessary. The woman then turned and kept on in quest of her George. Sheriff Smith again headed her off from the house and closed in on the wench, but not in time to keep her from emptying the revolver at the house. She was desperate and Smith was determined; consequently when he caught her he found himself pretty well matched in a contest for physical strength. The negress finally was forced to a surrender, after which she was turned over to the city authorities and was placed in the city jail.

But, when it came time for her to be placed in the cell, she put up a No. 1 good fight, with "teeth and toenail," and after she was confined, a big butcher knife was found on her person.

STRIKES OIL TANKS- IN NOWATA FIELD

LIGHTNING CAUSED HEAVY DAMAGE IN SETTING FIRE TO TANKS.

Nowata, Okla., June 1.—At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon lightning caused one of the biggest fires in this oil district ever known. All around in the Childers field are burning tanks, and the amount of damage done can not be estimated until tomorrow. The whole city is excited over the fire and many parties went out to the field as soon as the storm abated, to view the damage and watch the inspiring sight of so many big tanks fiercely burning.

On the Connor lease, adjacent to town, there are four 1,600 barrel tank in flames. On the lease adjoining that are three 250 barrel tanks burning and beyond that can be seen the smoke of other burning tanks. Little definite information can be had in the city as those interested have gone to the field and none of them have yet returned.

The storm which was the cause of the disaster came from the northwest in the afternoon and was one of the fiercest seen here in some time. There was a heavy fall of rain, accompanied by numerous and vivid flashes of lightning. The rain and storm continued for some time and it was nearly dark before the uneasy oil men were able to get teams and investigate the amount of the loss. As far as is known at present there has been no loss of life.

After years of debate medical authorities are now agreed that Eczema and other skin diseases are not seated in the blood, but are caused by myriads of microscopic animals gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.

Hence, scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in liquid form in order to penetrate properly. And we can say with confidence that we have the true remedy for Eczema in our store.

The instant you wash with this soothing liquid you will find the itch relieved. We positively assure you of this. Will you try a bottle (at only 25c) on our recommendation? Ask for D. D. D. Prescription Ramsey Drug Company, West Main Street

Deaf and Dumb!

By Harriet Lummis Smith

The two young men seated at the round table in the little open-air restaurant had kept up a desultory flow of talk, such as was compatible with doing justice to the delicious soft-shelled crabs for which the Sea Gull is noted. But it was a soundless conversation, inarticulate, for the fingers talked rather than the lips. George Laveton was a deaf mute and his cousin, Allan Merrifield, though less proficient in the sign language, had mastered enough of its intricacies to enable him to sustain a part in the conversation.

It was a girl's voice, coming from the table at the right.

"Yes, dreadful! And especially for the handsome ones," replied her companion.

"Now, which of us does she mean?" wondered Allan. His uncertainty was a credit to his modesty, for George's lean, brown face, in spite of an expression of alert intelligence, lacked every element of beauty. Fortunately the speaker settled the question by adding, "What dark, beautiful eyes he has! I never care for blue eyes in a man."

Allan heaved a sigh of relief. George's eyes were gray. He improved the first opportunity to glance at the other table. The girl in blue was beautiful. Her oval face was tinted like a seashell and the big violet eyes with their long lashes were bewitching in their frank pity.

George nudged his friend and his nimble fingers spelled out warning. "Don't stare so. It's rude."

"The worst of it is," remarked the girl who had spoken first, "that such an affliction shuts them out of everything. Of course they can't marry. No woman in her senses would consider such a thing.

"I don't know why," cried the girl in blue, indignantly.

"You don't?" The exclamation of her companion indicated mingled disapproval and surprise.

"Well, for one reason, he couldn't make love to you."

"He wouldn't need to," declared the girl in blue, a trifle sentimentally. "If only he looked—" she broke off with a laugh and her companion said, reprovingly:

Allan longed to see how she looked when she was blushing, but he did not dare to raise his eyes. And her name was Winifred. Somehow he liked the sound of it. He repeated it musingly to himself.

The talk at the table on the right turned into other channels, but though Allan listened eagerly for a clue to the identity of the speakers, none reached his ears. "In a few minutes we'll leave or they'll leave," he reflected, "and I'll never see her again." It seemed to him that it was a place of malice on the part of fate to have placed the girl in such tantalizing proximity, at the same time setting between them the barred wire fence of social convention. Why couldn't he have met her? He wished for a hurricane or an earthquake, something that would afford him an excuse for hurrying to her side and proffering his aid. But nothing happened except that George finished his crabs and asked on his fingers the leading question:

Allan took a final glance at the girl as he rose to go. She was even prettier than he had imagined—and sweeter. What a pensive little mouth was hers, drooping at the corners! And what a brave, tender-hearted little girl she had proved herself in her impetuous challenge to her friend. It seemed hard that he was turning away from her without any assurance that he would ever see her again. As he stepped aboard the street car he had so burdensome a sense of heaviness at heart that the ludicrous side of the situation forced itself on his attention and he laughed aloud.

In the nature of the case, an energetic young lawyer who is also a social favorite has little time to give to sentimental regrets. But somehow

The memory of the girl whose name was Winifred came back to Allan often in his hours of relaxation, or when he heard sweet music. Sometimes he dreamed of seeing her and the joy of recognition invariably awoke him. And so things went until one crisp fall morning, when Fate again took a hand in the game.

Allan came out of his office in a rush. He had some important matters to attend to before meeting a client. He had not yet reached the point in his profession when he could safely keep clients waiting. Accordingly he started to cross the street, despite the fact that a touring car was bearing down upon him, heralding its advance by the aggressive toots by which the modern motorist asserts his pre-eminent claim to the public highway. Allan believed that he had time enough to get across before the car should strike him and that, anyway, it was the chauffeur's business to look out.

At the critical moment his calculations were upset by a hand that clutched him arm. He stopped and pulled violently back, from under the very wheels of the swerving car.

Allan got back to the sidewalk without knowing just what had happened except that the hand that had first clutched him still held fast to his arm. Then, looking down, he saw that it was a little hand in a blue glove.

The hand released its hold on him, touched his shoulder, as if to attract his attention, and pointed in the direction of the now vanishing car. Allan understood that an effort had been made to save him from the consequences of his own recklessness and he tried to seem grateful.

The brim of the big hat was tilted with startling suddenness, disclosing a face, winsome in spite of its pallor. "You—you can speak?" gasped the girl—the girl whose name was Winifred.

The situation was trying. Suddenly it flashed upon him that his possession of the normal faculties was an offense to her. He tried to think of an answer to make to her and she backed away from him, the waves of color flooding her face.

"And you're not deaf and dumb at all? I was trying to save your life. I thought that you couldn't hear the horn and that you would be killed."

He came close to her. The street was full of people. Some passers-by stared at the pair, the girl with her face covered, as if she were crying, and the tall young man bending over her and plainly trying to comfort her. But, for all Allan knew, they two were alone in some enchanted garden.

"I'd like to tell you what I do think of you," he said, unsteadily. "Some time when we're better acquainted I shall do it. But without waiting I can tell what I think about myself, and it's that I'm the luckiest fellow on earth to find you again. Now I'm going to walk along with you and find out what your name is—besides Winifred."

The client came promptly at eleven. And he waited as long as if Allan had been an acknowledged ornament to the bar, rather than a beginner with a name to make.

Woman as a Social Success.

There is no quality more to be desired to make a woman a social success than that of tact. Its possessor knows the right thing to do and the right time for doing it and thus gains a reputation for cleverness and for many virtues which a tactless person would never win from her circle of acquaintances, no matter how excellent her qualities of both heart and head.

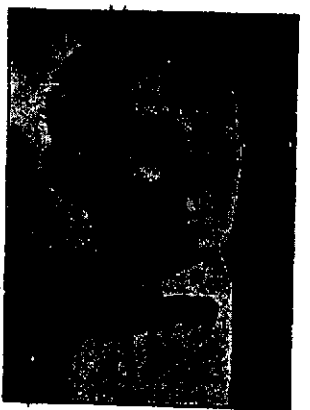

The tactful woman is not only a patient listener, but she is a thoroughly good one. She shows no weariness even when she has heard the same story more than once from the same person and she smiles in the right place and appears to enjoy hearing jokes as much as her companion enjoys telling them, says Woman's Life. A tactful woman generally gets her own way with her husband and with other people and yet in such a manner that people always suppose that they are following their own and not her inclinations. The fact is that she knows when a man is approachable and likely to be amenable to her wishes and when it is best to leave him alone. Tact is a weapon guided with a multitude of precautions and feminine wiles by the wise woman and it is only the wise who possess it.

Check Impulsiveness.

There is a sort of impulsiveness which often gets people into serious trouble. We are fretted and vexed at the acts of somebody else and we do not wait to think, but say out our irritation and wound deeply some sensitive spirit. We are angry and we let passion rule us instead of calm reflection. The impulsive person who cannot control his temper is like one who carries fire near gunpowder.

REPUBLICAN AND SOCIALIST NEGROES FILE PROTEST AGAINST AMENDMENT.

Guthrie, Okla., June 1.—Three protests were filed tonight with Secretary of State Bill Cross against the petitions recently filed by the Democratic State Executive Committee to initiate a "grandfather clause" amendment to the state constitution to disfranchise the negro voters of Oklahoma. Jas. A. Harris, as chairman filed a protest for the Republican State Committee, Patrick S. Nagle, as attorney for the Socialist party, filed the second protest, and the third was filed by W. H. Chappell, of Guthrie, as attorney for three aged negro voters, ex-slaves, who can neither read nor write, and would therefore be disfranchised by proposed amendment. The negro protestants are William Low, J. N. Neal and Sampson Smith, each over 70 years old.

Reasons For Protest.
The protests alleges that the petitions filed by the Democratic State Executive Committee, are not signed by a sufficient number of petitioners:

that large numbers of the signers are not qualified and legal voters in Oklahoma; that the petition is not sufficient in form and does not conform to the constitutional requirements, that the purpose of the proposed amendment is to disfranchise persons of African descent who are at this time qualified electors; that the proposed amendment is in conflict with the enabling act, which granted statehood to Oklahoma, in conflict with the state constitution which adopted the enabling act, and the United States constitution, and in conflict with the fifteenth amendment to the Federal constitution, all of which documents provide that no law shall ever be enacted which will restrict or abridge the right of suffrage on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, and that there are more than ten thousand persons of African descent in Oklahoma and their descendants who are now qualified electors, who would be disfranchised by this amendment.

Hearing Asked For.

AGAINST AMENDMENT.
Attorney General West Declares he Will Vote No on Article IX.

Guthrie, Okla., June 1.—Charles J. West, attorney general, issued a long statement tonight against the adoption of the Article IX amendment to the state constitution at the polls on June 11, and closed it by saying: "I will vote against the amendment."

NORMALITES DEBATE FOR NORRELL MEDAL

Ada's Young Orators Will Discuss Section 9 of Article 9 of Oklahoma's Constitution. A Splendid Program

Tomorrow evening at 8:30 there will be a debate at the High School Auditorium after which the Norrell Medal will be awarded to the best individual debater. The subject for debate is, Resolved, That Section 9 of Article 9 of the Oklahoma constitution should be repealed. Busby and Hall are on the affirmative and Ethridge and Ebey on the negative. Rev. J. D. White, Hon. Otis B. Weaver and W. T. Cox have been chosen as the judges.

Cowboy Chauffeur Captures Big Bear
Cody, Wyo., May 30.—When a big brown bear paused to look at an automobile near the ranch of G. C. Rudeson at the foot of Big Horn mountain today, Rudolph Rovigne, a cowboy chauffeur, holding the steering wheel with one hand, lassoed bruin as the car swept past. The captive was dragged to the Rudeson ranch and is on exhibition there with several bare spots on his coat.

INSURGENTS STRONGHOLD AND CAPITAL CLOSELY BESIEGED

New Orleans, June 1.—With attacks directed upon it from three different directions by the troops of the Madriz Government, Bluefields, the provisional stronghold and capital of the insurgents, finds itself today largely in a state of siege. Within the last few days Gen. Estrada, commanding the insurgents, has repulsed the enemy behind Bluefields and at Rama, but has lost the bluff and the custom house through what he believes to have been a piece of treachery.

Several Americans Killed
This has been the bloodiest week of the war and the total of the casualty lists on both sides will run into the hundreds, including several Americans, who had cast their lot with the insurgents.

In the fight at Rama William Ross, said to be from Milwaukee and to have served either in the United States Army or Navy, was killed. Several other Americans buried his body on the hills near Rama.

Another American named Mason was reported killed. He was last seen in a trench between the Madriz army and the insurgents' fortifications.

New York, June 1.—Nearly one hundred young Scotch women, betrothed to men who have been in America from six months to several years, arrived in the first and second cabin and steerage of the steamship Caledonia, from Glasgow. Some of the first cabin voyagers were met at the pier by men who took them away to marry them. Steerage passengers, who were taken to Ellis Island, will be released and married soon.

Guthrie, Okla., June 1.—The woman suffragists of Oklahoma won a signal victory in the supreme court today, when Associate Justice Williams affirmed the decision of Secretary of State Bill Cross in overruling the objections made by State Secretary Reuben M. Rodde of Ada to the petitions secured by the suffragists asking for an election to give women the elective franchise in this state. The proposition will now be referred by Secretary Cross to Gov. Faskell for a place on the ballot in November.

The court named June 7 the day when State Senator Campbell Russell's initiated bill to locate the permanent state capital on the "New Jerusalem" plan, and appropriating $1,000,000 for that purpose will be argued.

Other decisions today were as follows:

By Justice Williams: Edwards vs. T. H. Rassh, Custer county, affirmed.

City of McAlester vs. McMurray, Pittsburg County, reversed and remanded.

By Justice Kane: Reversing action of the Woodward County jury that removed County Judge T. L. O'Bryan from office; Walker vs. Bowman, Oklahoma county, affirmed.

Oklahoma City, Ok., June 1.—Jas. W. Martin, a Lawton capitalist, and Miss Mary E. Houston, a granddaughter of Gen. Sam Houston, hero of the Texas Battle of San Jacinto and afterward Governor of the Republic of Texas and of the State, and cousin of the late Temple Houston of Woodward, were married today. The ceremony was performed by a Catholic priest, Mr. and Mrs. Martin left immediately for Kansas City.

OKLAHOMA PERFECTED LAW, BUT DID NOT ORIGINATE IT.

Shake a red rag at a range bull or
can politician and you explode the falsity of the ancient proverb Hell bath no fury like a woman scorned.
The acrobatic gyrations of Joe Mc-
Neal demonstrate fully and finally
undergo a revision. In the long ago
one time before the Democrats took Oklahoma a female scorned might
have raised some hul-a baloo in Hades but she must now perform before empty benches while forty per-
ad finem that it is outrageous for a banker to return borrowed money
especially when the money is borrowed from farmers merchants and mechanics. Freak legislation Socia-
Woof.

But why not open the records and let the story of the Bank Guaranty
law be read as it appears on the legislative pages of the past. The idea
had passed into legislative enactments
long before Oklahoma's name appeared in the geography of the union and
many decades before American Socialism had pipped its shell.

1. New York, which is sometimes Democratic, oftener Republican, and
always capitalistic, passed a bank
guaranty law in 1831.

2. Vermont, always Republican,
and never having enough Democrats
for the Republican spellbinders to
use for "horrible examples," passed
a bank guaranty law in 1834.

3. Republican Michigan passed a bank guaranty law years before the Civil war.

Let the people know that the Bank Guaranty law has been tried in
panics in this.

Some Whys and Wherefores.

1. Why do corporations so persistently denounce the state corporation commission? Because they have never
with all their brains and their cunning
been able to control that commission.

Because the commission has taken
them by the throat and told them to obey the laws of the state.

Because the commission has insisted on their meeting the requirements
of their charters. Because the commission has warned them that honesty is the best policy.

2. Why does the Republican press
of Oklahoma sympathize with the corporations in their war on the Corporation Commission?

has been perfectly natural for a parent to sympathize with its child.

That the Oklahoma Republican
press should attack the State Corporation Commission is immaterial. It
that bears the Democratic trademark.
But the opinion of the Commission
their unprejudiced attitude and because of their absolute disinterested-
ness.

The leading Republican daily of Topeka Kansas said recently of the Oklahoma Corporation Commission and
its laws.

Give Kansas as good corporation
laws as are contained in the constitution of Oklahoma, and give us an efficient corporation commission as the state of Oklahoma and then will Kansas reap the rewards due its people.

Humorous Happening to English Disciple of the Immortal
Isaac Walton.

An incident of a somewhat amusing
nature was witnessed a few days ago
near the Gower bridge, Llanrwst,
says the London Field. It appears that
a visitor armed with rod and line was
plying the gentle art, and enticing the
wily trout by insinuating his flies on
the placid surface of the deep pool
which forms that portion of the Con-
way river.

Above him on a high bank stood a
cow. Suddenly a big trout rose like
a flash and secured one of the flies,
with the result that the reel immediately began to whirl.

The angler, with galvanic suddenness, jumped back and struck. His unexpected maneuver, however, start-
led the cow, with the result that she
slipped and with a somersault and a heartrending "Moo" fell with a mighty splash into the pool beneath.

angler's hand and after a few spas-
modic movements floated gently down stream, while the trout, adapting himself to such favorable opportunity, dis-
gorged the indigestible mockery on
the hook and dashed out of the zone
of danger and turmoil. The angler, who had undergone the pleasures of a generous shower bath, having collected his scattered thoughts and convinced himself that he was not implicated in the throes of a violent
earthquake, hurled a torrent of theological terms on the innocent cow,
which was making futile efforts to
regain terra firma.

that the animal was drowning, so the
angler, with the generosity of his kind, called for assistance, and ultimately the half-drowned cow was rescued by means of ropes. It is anticipated that the angler when he
next visits his club in England will
regale the company with reminiscences
of his fishing exploit in the Conway
when he hooked a trout and landed a cow.

Any Are to Be Saved—Killed
by Imported Vermin.

Nearly every native bird in New Zealand will be absolutely protected
by law this year. The animals protection act provides that 1910 and
every third year after that may at the discretion of the governor in council be declared a closed season for native game. The absence of bird life in New Zealand is already most noticeable. T Mackenzie, a member of the government, as the result of a recent journey through the country,
writes:

"Between Nelson and Hokitika
hardly any bird life at all is to be met with. The imported vermin have done their work of bird destruction
only too well. In the region from Ross to the south, however the fowl
and the pigeon are to be seen making bright the landscape with their presence."

"At the Forks I met a gentleman who took a great interest in bird life
on the coast and he told me that the
weka, kiwi and kawakawa had disappeared, and he believed that the
stoats and weasels killed every bird
in the country. He had himself just
lost a half grown black swan which

"The stoats and weasels were often
seen in the neighborhood of the lakes
where the ducks made their nests, and it was suspected that the vermin paid
due attention to their eggs."

Literary Ambition.

"Oh, I simply can't go downtown
this morning. I must stay at home
and write to the editor of the Whirl."
'Why on earth should you wish to write to the editor of the Whirl? Do you know him?'

"No, I mean a letter for publication,
you know—among the 'Communications
From Our Readers.' Don't you ever read them? They're awfully interesting."

"Yes, I read them sometimes. But

The Japanese have been the first
nation to officially recognize the wireless telephone. The Occidentals
are setting the pace for the
for congress has appropriated $30,000
this year for wireless telephones for
the army and Rear Admiral Cowles,
chief of the bureau of equipment of
to congress a plan for equipping the
vessels with wireless phones.

The inventor, Mr Collins, is an
alumnus of the old University of Chicago, and has been experimenting with wireless telephony since 1899. He
patented his invention just after the
dawn of the twentieth century and,
continued to develop and improve it,
until in July, 1908, he made his longest
distance test from his laboratory in
where another instrument was located in the Land Title building.

Since that time the growth of the
wireless telephone idea has been phenomenal. Mr Collins has perfected a tuning device that insures secrecy of
entire system until today his wireless telephone is ready for general commercial use.

The most notable tests of the Collins wireless telephone were made by
the inventor in July 1908, as above stated. The Scientific American
states:

The longest distance wireless telephone tests yet made on this side of the Atlantic were between Newark
of 81 miles as wireless waves travel.

The system by which this has been accomplished is due to A Frederick Collins a pioneer in the wireless telephone field. The first of his series of tests took place between his laboratory in Newark, where he has a high
power sending station, and the Singer
building in New York city, about twelve miles away, when spoken words
were clearly and loudly transmitted
across the intervening space. The following day the distance was increased to 35 miles, when the receiving station was located at Mr Collins'
country home at Congers, N Y, and
then, amplifying the power of the
sending station and bringing the instruments into sharp resonance, the Newark Philadelphia tests were made
the following Tuesday at midnight,
from the top of the Land Title building.

Women War on Disease.

If exophthalmic goitre, the origin
of which has up to the present baffled
the medical world, is ever proved to
be a microbic disease a great portion of the credit for the discovery,
says the London Mail, will be due to
the women workers in the laboratories
of the Royal hospital in Grays Inn
road.

In recent years the surgeons of the Royal Free hospital have made a special study of goitre cases from the operative standpoint, and from the material thus gained the laboratory staff
have been able to go thoroughly into
the numerous theories current as to
changes in the tissues of goitres have
been observed which almost conclusively prove that some as yet undis-
covered microbe is the active cause of the disease.

The success of the experiment of
having women on the house staff, begun in 1901, is shown in the annual increase in the number of patients treated since that date. At the annual
in the past year.

Permanently Soured

The lawyer was examining the venue-man as to his qualifications to sit on the jury.

"You know Mr Swaddleford," he
said "the meaning of the phrase,
'reasonable doubt,' do you not? "

"Yes, sir."

cause you to entertain a doubt as to
the guilt of the defendant do you
of it? "

"No, sir, I couldn't."

"Why not? "

"Because, sir," snapped the venue-man "I've been givin' old Doc Cook
the benefit of all the doubts and when I found out he's the worst faker in
the business I ain't got no patience

"That is all Mr Swaddleford."

"You may stand aside," said the court.

Mr W M Webb explained how
fashions were perpetuated by the gradual acquisition of a gentleman's castoff clothes by his servants. A powdered footman of today was wearing the costume of a gentleman of George II's time and the lord mayor's coachman now was dressed exactly
like a nobleman of the time of George
III. A page boy, with his three rows
of buttons, wore what was known in
the early years of last century as the
"Dutch skeleton dress," a very fash-
classes—London Standard.

Sad but True.

"A few of us manage to 'save our names on the table of fame,'" remarked old uncle Haskypank.

"Well," said the player,

"But most of us never save them on anything more important than a mud turtle."

There has been a case before both the Police and Justice court that has been ground for a good deal of discussion for the past week. On the 25 of May policeman Culver and Brady arrested J. B. Rogers, charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

Rogers gave bond for his appearance in Police court next morning, but before that court opened he went before Justice of the Peace, Brown, and informed him that he, Rogers, wanted to plead guilty to carrying a pistol. The Judge asked if he had been arrested, whereupon Rogers replied in the affirmative.

Furthermore it appears that Rogers asked Jim Adair to make a complaint against him to Judge Brown. Adair hesitated on the ground that he had not made the arrest and not sign the complaint at that instant. But, as evidence tended to show in yesterday's trial, Judge Brown accepted a fine of $25.00 and cost from the defendant, after which time Adair signed the complaint.

The defendant appeared at the Police court and Chief Culver made a complaint against him in the above mentioned court to which he pleaded guilty. Judge Powers assessed a fine against him of $14.15. The defendant claimed that he did not understand that he was on trial when the plea of guilty was made. The Judge after considerable deliberation allowed the defendant to withdraw the plea and granted him a new trial. The trial was set for June 1. Then comes the defendant and pleads a bar to prosecution by reason of former conviction. The court overruled this and ruled that the defendant could not plead former conviction as a bar and that this court had prior jurisdiction by reason of its officers having arrested the defendant and had placed him under bond to appear in police court before he had plead in Justice court. Then the case was brought to trial and the defendant was convicted and fined $23.25. The defendant made bond and appealed to District Court.

The case has been interesting because it was merely a contest to determine jurisdiction of the two courts.

ANOTHER ESCAPE IN COON TOWN; JUST A MAD NEG-GER AND A GUN

Yesterday, late in the afternoon, Little Murrell, wife of George Murrell, got on a rampage and went gunning for her man, George. As the story goes she secured the firearm from a neighboring shack and was under headway back to her own house where she hoped to wreak vengeance on her Lord who was resting quite at ease—perhaps asleep unaware of the approaching danger. A middle-aged coon on the compress platform devining her intention, butted in, so to speak, but one shot from Little's gun sufficed to cause him to desert. About this time Sheriff T. J. Smith, who had gotten wind of the expected trouble, appeared upon the scene. The negress seeing the sheriff would anticipate her by cutting her off from the house, took a pop at him, whereupon T. J. dodged behind a convenient box car, so some one has said, and prevailed on the woman in very eloquent terms not to repeat the act. Anyway he convinced her that he could shoot a little himself if necessary. The woman then turned and kept on in quest of her George. Sheriff Smith again headed her off from the house and closed in on the wench, but not in time to keep her from emptying the revolver at the house. She was desperate and Smith was determined; consequently when he caught her he found himself pretty well matched in a contest for physical strength. The negress finally was forced to a surrender, after which she was turned over to the city authorities and was placed in the city jail.

But, when it came time for her to be placed in the cell, she put up a No. 1 good fight, with "teeth and toenail," and after she was confined, a big butcher knife was found on her person.

STRIKES OIL TANKS IN NOWATA FIELD

Nowata, Okla., June 1.—At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon lightning caused one of the biggest fires in this oil district ever known. All around in the Childers field are burning tanks, and the amount of damage done can not be estimated until tomorrow. The whole city is excited over the fire and many parties went out to the field as soon as the storm abated, to view the damage and watch the inspiring sight of so many big tanks fiercely burning.

On the Connor lease, adjacent to town, there are four 1,600 barrel tank in flames. On the lease adjoining that are three 250 barrel tanks burning and beyond that can be seen the smoke of other burning tanks. Little definite information can be had in the city as those interested have gone to the field and none of them have yet returned.

The storm which was the cause of the disaster came from the northwest in the afternoon and was one of the fiercest seen here in some time. There was a heavy fall of rain, accompanied by numerous and vivid flashes of lightning. The rain and storm continued for some time and it was nearly dark before the uneasy oil men were able to get teams and investigate the amount of the loss. As far as is known at present there has been no loss of life.

After years of debate medical authorities are now agreed that Eczema and other skin diseases are not seated in the blood, but are caused by myriads of microscopic animals gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy. It is only the skin that is diseased.

Hence, scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in liquid form in order to penetrate properly. And we can say with confidence that we have the true remedy for Eczema in our store.

The instant you wash with this soothing liquid you will find the itch relieved. We positively assure you of this. Will you try a bottle (at only 25c) on our recommendation? Ask for D. D. D. Prescription Ramsey Drug Company, West Main Street

Deaf and Dumb!

(Copyright, 1922, by Associated Literary Press.)

The two young men seated at the round table in the little open-air restaurant had kept up a desultory flow of talk, such as was compatible with doing justice to the delicious soft-shelled crabs for which the Sea Gull is noted. But it was a soundless conversation, inarticulate, for the fingers talked rather than the lips. George Laverton was a deaf mute and his cousin, Allan Merrifield, though less proficient in the sign language, had mastered enough of its intricacies to enable him to sustain a part in the conversation.

It was a girl's voice, coming from the table at the right.

Allan heaved a sigh of relief. George's eyes were gray. He improved the first opportunity to glance at the other table. The girl in blue was beautiful. Her oval face was tinted like a seashell and the big violet eyes with their long lashes were bewitching in their frank pity.

"The worst of it is," remarked the girl who had spoken first, "that such an affliction shuts them out of every-

"Why Have You Lost Your Appetite?" thing. Of course they can't marry. No woman in her senses would consider such a thing. "I don't know why," cried the girl in blue, indignantly. "You don't?" The exclamation of her companion indicated mingled disapproval and surprise. "Well, for one reason, he couldn't make love to you." "He wouldn't need to," declared the girl in blue, a trifle sentimentally. "If only he looked—" she broke off with a laugh and her companion said, reprovingly: "Well, Winifred, I don't wonder you blush."

Allan longed to see how she looked when she was blushing, but he did not dare to raise his eyes. And her name was Winifred. Somehow he liked the sound of it. He repeated it musingly to himself.

The talk at the table on the right turned into other channels, but though Allan listened eagerly for a clue to the identity of the speakers, none reached his ears. "In a few minutes we'll leave or they'll leave," he reflected, "and I'll never see her again." It seemed to him that it was a piece of malice on the part of fate to have placed the girl in such tantalizing proximity, at the same time setting between them the barred wire fence of social convention. Why couldn't he have met her? He wished for a hurricane or an earthquake, something that would afford him an excuse for hurrying to her side and proffering his aid. But nothing happened except that George finished his crabs and asked on his fingers the leading question:

"Why have you lost your appetite?" Allan took a final glance at the girl as he rose to go. She was even prettier than he had imagined—and sweeter. What a pensive little mouth was hers, drooping at the corners! And what a brave, tender-hearted little girl she had proved herself in her impetuous challenge to her friend. It seemed hard that he was turning away from her without any assurance that he would ever see her again. As he stepped aboard the street car he had so burdensome a sense of heaviness at heart that the ludicrous side of the situation forced itself on his attention and he laughed aloud. In the nature of the case, an energetic young lawyer who is also a social favorite has little time to give to sentimental regrets. But somehow the memory of the girl whose name was Winifred came back to Allan often in his hours of relaxation, or when he heard sweet music. Sometimes he dreamed of seeing her and the joy of recognition invariably awoke him. And so things went until one crisp fall morning, when Fate again took a hand in the game.

Allan came out of his office in a rush. He had some important matters to attend to before meeting a client. He had not yet reached the point in his profession when he could safely keep clients waiting. Accordingly he started to cross the street, despite the fact that a touring car was bearing down upon him, heralding its advance by the aggressive toots by which the modern motorist asserts his pre-eminence claim to the public highway. Allan believed that he had time enough to get across before the car should strike him and that, anyway, it was the chauffeur's business to look out.

At the critical moment his calculations were upset by a hand that clutched him arm. He stopped and pulled violently back, from under the very wheels of the swerving car.

Allan got back to the sidewalk without knowing just what had happened except that the hand that had first clutched him still held fast to his arm. Then, looking down, he saw that it was a little hand in a blue glove.

The hand released its hold on him, touched his shoulder, as if to attract his attention, and pointed in the direction of the now vanishing car. Allan understood that an effort had been made to save him from the consequences of his own recklessness and he tried to seem grateful.

The brim of the big hat was tilted with startling suddenness, disclosing a face, winsome in spite of its pallor. "You—you can speak?" gasped the girl—the girl whose name was Winifred.

The situation was trying. Suddenly it flashed upon him that his possession of the normal faculties was an offense to her. He tried to think of an answer to make to her and she backed away from him, the waves of color flooding her face.

"And you're not deaf and dumb at all? I was trying to save your life. I thought that you couldn't hear the horn and that you would be killed."

He came close to her. The street was full of people. Some passers-by stared at the pair, the girl with her face covered, as if she were crying, and the tall young man bending over her and plainly trying to comfort her. But, for all Allan knew, they two were alone in some enchanted garden.

"I'd like to tell you what I do think of you," he said, unsteadily. "Some time when we're better acquainted I shall do it. But without waiting I can tell what I think about myself, and it's that I'm the luckiest fellow on earth to find you again. Now I'm going to walk along with you and find out what your name is—besides Winifred."

The client came promptly at eleven. And he waited as long as if Allan had been an acknowledged ornament to the bar, rather than a beginner with a name to make.

There is no quality more to be desired to make a woman a social success than that of tact. Its possessor knows the right thing to do and the right time for doing it and thus gains a reputation for cleverness and for many virtues which a tactless person would never win from her circle of acquaintances, no matter how excellent her qualities of both heart and head.

The tactful woman is not only a patient listener, but she is a thoroughly good one. She shows no weariness even when she has heard the same story more than once from the same person and she smiles in the right place and appears to enjoy hearing jokes as much as her companion enjoys telling them, says Woman's Life.

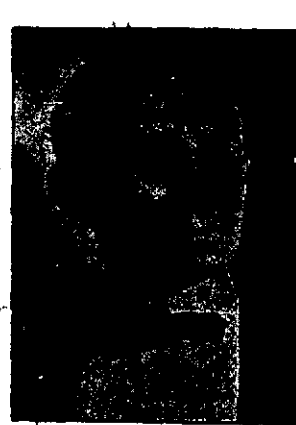

A tactful woman generally gets her own way with her husband and with other people and yet in such a manner that people always suppose that they are following their own and not her inclinations. The fact is that she knows when a man is approachable and likely to be amenable to her wishes and when it is best to leave him alone. Tact is a weapon guided with a multitude of precautions and feminine wiles by the wise woman and it is only the wise who possess it.

Check Impulsiveness.

There is a sort of impulsiveness which often gets people into serious trouble. We are fretted and vexed at the acts of somebody else and we do not wait to think, but say out our irritation and wound deeply some sensitive spirit. We are angry and we let passion rule us instead of calm reflection. The impulsive person who cannot control his temper is like one who carries fire near gunpowder.
